

The Division of Substance Dependence - University of Colorado Denver - is offering a FREE early intervention for adolescents in the Boulder/Louisville area. This program offers a comprehensive evaluation and payment for time to teenagers between ages 13-17 for participating in a study of a new intervention utilizing martial arts for dealing with early substance abuse problems. This is a National Institute of Drug Abuse funded study that is affiliated with the University of Colorado Denver.

+++++

Are you (or a teenager you know):

- .. Having trouble in school?
- .. Not getting along with friends or family?
- .. Feeling angry a lot?
- .. Using drugs or alcohol?

The University of Colorado at Denver & Health Sciences Center's Adolescent Research Center in Louisville, CO offers a comprehensive evaluation and payment for time and travel to teenagers between 13 and 17 years old for participating in a study of a new intervention, utilizing traditional martial arts, for dealing with early substance use and other related problems.

If you, or someone you know, would be interested in more information about participating in this study, please call (720) 890-8222.

*The study Principal Investigator is Robert Davies, MD, Associate Professor, Department of Psychiatry, UCDHSC, (303) 315-0452
COMIRB # 05-0681*