

Feb. 10, 2012

Dear Parents,

We had a work-filled week. It was very exciting to plant seeds on Monday and have them sprout on Wednesday! We started recording the growth of our Brassica plants in our science logs and talked about what plants need to survive.

I completed reading evaluations and your child will be in a new reading group next week.

Lots of this week's writing/spelling/and math will be shown to you at your child's conference next week.

We are studying measurement in math. We worked with weight, area and length, using nonstandard units(like real feet!)

Next week's Valentines Party will be on Tuesday at 1:30. Parents can come earlier to help set up. Our class will be in the Art room until the party starts. Valentines and boxes can be brought in Tuesday morning.

Mexico books are in your child's folder today. They are graded on a scale of 1-4, based on completion and quality. If you want to work on them at home, that would be great. Especially if your child was absent.

Please help me stay on time (20 minutes) for your conference. We can always schedule more time later if we need it.

Have nice weekend.

Warmly,

Becky Swanstrom

