December 16, 2011

It is the time of the season to celebrate the holidays with family and friends and to pass on family traditions and memories to our children. Traditions are important because they make us who we are today. It is also important to think of the people who are less fortunate than us at this time. I would like to thank all of the families that donated and shopped for the Heatherwood Shares program this year. We were able to make a difference in the lives of 16 Heatherwood families. There will be smiles on their faces because of your generosity. I would also like to thank Mary Swanson for coordinating the Shares program. It is a tradition that has helped support so many Heatherwood families over the years.

Heatherwood Elementary has many things to celebrate this year. We have a fabulous student body, teaching staff and parental support. I think we have the most creative and caring children in the entire world! The Colorado Department of Education awarded our school the 2011 John Irwin Award for achieving state wide honors. We have three teachers, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Cornacchia and Mrs. Kamphuis that have received Impact on Education Classroom Innovative Grant awards for their grade levels.

Heatherwood has also learned this week that we have received this year's National Center James L. Oberstar Safe Routes to School Awards, and we are only one of two schools in the country to receive this recognition. It is a very prestigious award. I would like to thank the Safe Routes to School Committee, both present and past members, and of course Amy Thompson who has spearheaded so many improvements at and around our school. The judges were uniformly impressed with the number and variety of the programs as well as the accomplishments that were achieved in such a short amount of time. They unanimously noted that Heatherwood's program is an outstanding one and is an example for other programs across the nation. The National Center commented they are looking forward to presenting our award to the passionate students, staff and parents of Heatherwood Elementary. We are fortunate to have many gifts at Heatherwood, and we never rest on our laurels, but continuously find ways to make improvements for our students and community each day.

An important note about our PTO funded Child Assault Prevention Program:

The Child Assault Prevention Program (CAP) will present a workshop for Heatherwood parents on Thursday, January 5 from 5:00 to 7:00 pm that covers information on the issues and dynamics of child abuse and neglect, definitions and indicators of abuse, information on how to respond to children in crisis, the responsibilities of mandated reporters, resources in our community, the history and philosophy of CAP and a description of the role-plays and assault prevention techniques used in the children's workshop. CAP will present workshops in all classes this school year. The workshop consists of a guided group discussion about the right of every child to live strong and free from abuse and demonstration of assault prevention techniques. All Pre K-5 Heatherwood parents are encouraged to attend the parent workshop. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Best Regards from the Heatherwood Staff for a Happy and Healthy Holiday Season and a very Happy New Year!

Two Schools Recognized for Safe Routes to School Top Honor

Heatherwood Elementary School and Omro Middle School Receive 2011 Safe Routes to School Award

(CHAPEL HILL, N.C.) December 16, 2011 — Each year, the National Center for Safe Routes to School has the privilege of recognizing one Safe Routes to School (SRTS) program in the country for outstanding achievement in promoting safe walking and bicycling to school. This year - a first in the history of the James L. Oberstar Safe Routes to School Award - two schools will receive this national honor: Heatherwood Elementary School in Boulder, Colo., and Omro Middle School in Omro, Wis.

“Both schools developed comprehensive Safe Routes to School programs to change the commuting culture of students in very different ways,” said Lauren Marchetti, director of the National Center for Safe Routes to School. “Both of this year’s Award recipients are being recognized for developing and implementing successful programs unique to their individual school’s needs. This creativity led to increased walking and bicycling to school at Heatherwood, and a new mindset among Omro students and the community that incorporates active transportation as a way of life.”

Heatherwood Elementary School

At Heatherwood Elementary School, a 2008 parent survey revealed that few students were walking or cycling to school because a rural highway bisects the school’s attendance area. Heatherwood received $235,000 for infrastructure improvements to a crosswalk that spans the highway and $9,000 for education and encouragement activities by Colorado Department of Transportation. This funding, paired with tremendous support for the program from parents and faculty, brought about great change at the school. In just three years, Heatherwood Elementary School’s SRTS efforts and activities resulted in an increase from 12 percent to more than 43 percent of the school’s students regularly walking and bicycling to school.

What stood out most for SRTS Coordinator Amy Thompson was the inclusion of the school’s autistic children in the district-wide Bike to School Day, an effort funded by $1,000 mini-grant from the National Center.

“We took a huge risk trying something that had never been done before, and it turned out beautifully,” said Thompson. “We had lots of parents with tears in their eyes and children who had never been on a bike before not wanting to get off of the tandems.”

Omro Middle School

In the small, rural city of Omro, about 42 percent of middle school students live within two miles of the school, but many of these students must cross one or more major barriers, including two highways and a river, to get there. As a result, 90 percent of students are eligible for bus service. Despite these challenges, all students, regardless of how they travel to and from school, are exposed to a wide variety of SRTS education and encouragement activities. For instance, Omro Middle School has developed a cycling program using a fleet of more than 35 bicycles that is available to students during Physical Education classes, lunch and special events and trips. The bicycle fleet is maintained by the school’s “Young Mechanics” who are trained high school and middle school students working in a fully tooled bike shop.

“Today we are seeing more and more U.S. cities establishing bike sharing programs, but what is especially impressive about Omro is that the middle school organizes and runs the program itself, rather than a civic or adult organization,” said Marchetti.

In 2009, Wisconsin Department of Transportation awarded $21,054 for the school to complete an SRTS plan, and a total of $101,438 will be authorized for infrastructure activities and to upgrade their bicycle education course.

“The staff at Omro Middle School saw Safe Routes to School as a way to augment physical education years ago at a time when budget cuts reduced the number of weekly physical education classes for students,” said Melissa Kraemer Badtke, Safe Routes to School Coordinator and Associate Planner at East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. “Students are developing a bicycling culture and want to make bicycling their primary mode of transportation to school and to and from their friends’ houses. It fulfills middle school aged students’ wants and desires to become independent.”

The two schools were selected to receive the 2011 Award by a committee comprised of representatives from: the Institute of Transportation Engineers (ITE), the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO), the Pedestrian and Bicycle Information Center (PBIC), the Safe Routes to School National Partnership and the National Center for Safe Routes to School.

About the Safe Routes to School Award

The James L. Oberstar Safe Routes to School Award is given annually for outstanding achievement in implementing a Safe Routes to School program in the United States. The award is named for James L. Oberstar, former chairman of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee (2007-2011) and former U.S. Representative for Minnesota’s 8th Congressional District (1975-2011), to honor his dedication to American schoolchildren as the pioneer for the federal Safe Routes to School Program. Mr. Oberstar sponsored the Safe Routes to School legislation that strives to create safe settings to enable more children and parents to walk and bicycle to school.

The National Center for Safe Routes to School opens a call for applications each year, usually in the fall, and evaluates applications with assistance of an expert panel representing organizations that promote safe walking and bicycling. For more information, visit www.saferoutesinfo.org/data-central/success-stories/safe-routes-to-school-award.

About the National Center for Safe Routes to School

Established in May 2006, the National Center for Safe Routes to School assists states and communities in enabling and encouraging children to safely walk and bicycle to school. The National Center serves as the information clearinghouse for the federal Safe Routes to School program. The organization also provides technical support and resources and coordinates online registration efforts for U.S. Walk to School Day and facilitates worldwide promotion and participation. The National Center is part of the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center with funding from the U.S. Department of Transportation Federal Highway Administration. HUSKY SHARES

An omission from last month's blurb: I would like to also thank former Heatherwood Huskies and current Platt eighth graders Grant Williams and Morgan Katnik for their time spent as Greeters at King Soopers during the "Let's Bag Hunger" food drive. Great job guys, and a Husky Paw fist bump to you!

What a terrific group we had for our December outing! Husky Paw High-Fives go to Griffin Aubrey, Anna Katnik, Matilda Yeats, Katie McClatchey, Garrett Christopher, Zachary Christopher, Arwen Vieville, Hunter Gottlieb, Lara Gottlieb, and Kate Wilsted! Thanks also to parents Kathy Christopher and Cyndi Aubrey! The students worked so hard and because these kids are so diligent, Sue, the Volunteer Coordinator, put us to work right away on sorting bread! They divided the breads into three categories: sweet, sliced, and other. The kids kept remarking how hungry they were! It is a recurring theme, which is why we have a big snack before we head over to Community Food Share.

We also had a chance to do a bit of math. Each pallet was loaded with two boxes wide and three boxes long, so $2 \times 3 = 6$. Then, we looked at how high the pallets were stacked, and the kids did that math. Six boxes per level and there were four levels, so $6 \times 4 = 24$. Then, two boxes were missing from the top level, so $24 - 2 = 22$. We did that math for each pallet and decided that we sorted over 60 boxes in one hour! Then we divided 60 boxes by the number of kids there, 10, so $60 / 10 = 6$ boxes per student! These kids do a lot of work in 55 minutes! We didn't divide boxes per minute; that might be a good one to do at home.

Our next trip is right after we return from Winter Break on Friday, January 6, from 2:30-4:15. If you would like to find out more about this program and sign up, please visit the Husky Food Share link <http://www.bvsd.org/schools/heatherwood/activities/huskyfoodshare/Pages/default.aspx> to register your child!

Thank you and have a wonderful, wintry break! Cheers, Fran

Student Messages: Delivery of messages for changes in students' after school plans are disruptive to the office, classroom teacher and to students. It is the school policy that only emergency messages will be delivered to students during the school day. Play plans and after school "reminders" need to be taken care of outside of school. When an emergency message is called or emailed to the office staff, we will hold the messages until 2:15 pm. At 2:15 we will phone the student's classroom teacher and give them the message. Remember, you are disrupting the entire classroom of students' learning when we interrupt for messages. Please be respectful of the learning environment.

WE DID IT!

WE REACHED OUR GOAL!

Thank you to everyone who donated to the Heatherwood Impact Month (H.I.M). We have reached our HIM goal of $40,000! This includes the math/literacy, interventionist, health room aide, recess & lunch support aides, and kindergarten teacher's aide—important resources to all Heatherwood Students.

Thank you also goes out to everyone who turned in their blue HIM form. Mrs. Siemel's second grade class won the HIM Participation Contest with 72% of the class turning in their HIM forms. They have earned themselves a pizza party!

POLICIES and GENERAL INFORMATION

All Students are Welcome! - Whether your child is outgoing or reserved, he/she will love our acting classes. Quiet children find a place where it is safe to be heard and more outgoing children find an outlet for their creativity. Students are expected to be respectful of each other and be ready to work together as we explore our creativity.
Parent ___ Child ___

Class Content and Last Day Showcase - Our acting classes are process-oriented, with a focus on giving students a positive experience of creating and performing theater -- not on rehearsing elaborate plays or musicals. Students will still have a chance to perform for an audience when parents, family members, and friends are invited to attend the final class for a showcase of the exercises and activities that the students have been learning. Sometimes, to prepare for the showcase, students may need to practice or review exercises at home in-between workshops. This is intended to be a fun and non-stressful activity for your child and the family. Parent ___ Child ___

Getting to the Class - All classes are held within the school building unless otherwise noted. Parents of younger or forgetful children may wish to send a reminder with the child. We are not responsible for getting your child to the class.
Parent ___ Child ___

Late Pick-ups - Please be on time to pick up your child. Meet him/her in the room at the end of class. If you are more than five minutes late, we will call you and may leave your student in the office or with the after-care program until you arrive. If it happens a second time, you will be notified and your student will be un-enrolled without a refund. Our Teaching Artists are professional actors or certified teachers who often have other classes/rehearsals after the Young Imagination Makers classes. Parent ___ Child ___

Class Conduct - Great actors are patient, kind, and follow directions. We are protective of the class environment and the experience of each student and will un-enroll students who are repeatedly disruptive. The first time a student seriously disrupts class, a warning will be issued. The second time, you will be notified and your student will be un-enrolled without a refund. If your student has difficulty following directions or focusing, he/she may not be ready yet for our theater class. Call our office if you have questions or concerns. Parent ___ Child ___

Parent Observation - Although we discourage "observers" (it can create performance anxiety in some students), our door is always open and we invite you to arrive 10 minutes before class ends. You may observe your student during that time. Parent ___ Child ___

What to Bring to Class - Students should wear comfortable clothes and bring a water bottle.

Scholarships -Imagination Makers works hard to keep its education program affordable for families, but the company is unable to offer scholarships at this time.
